

Advocate photo by Gary Kuiken

KEEPING THEM GOING STRAIGHT IS THE HARDEST PART—It's not a very common sight in Central Alberta anymore, but even less common when your oxen are actually Holstein steers. Glen Halvorson of the Sylvan Lake area has spent an average of 90 minutes a day with these two steers since they were nine months old. They're now 11 months old. Because of other pressing business, such as school work and helping put in the crops, their training sessions have had to be shortened somewhat lately. But summer holidays are just around the corner. The yoke for his "oxen" was built by a neighbor, Martin Durajcik. The vehicle itself is an old milk cart.

Howard's Boy